

Tarryn Martusen B.A.

Infant Developmental Specialist

Tarryn is an Infant Development Specialist with two years of experience in early intervention. During that time, she worked with occupational, physical, feeding, speech, and music therapists to ensure all needs of the children were met. She graduated on the Dean's List at Humboldt State University, now Cal-Poly Humboldt. Tarryn majored in Child Development with a focus on children with developmental delays/disabilities and minored in American Indian Education. She has a collective decade of experience working with children as a nanny, infant and preschool teacher, as well as preschool director, but her passion lies with early intervention.
